ADVERTISING
Has created many a new business;
Has enlarged many an old business;
Has revived many a dull business;
Has rescued many a lost business;
Has saved many a failing business;
Has preserved many a large business;
And insures success in any business.

GIRARD'S SECRET.—Stephen Girard used to say: "I have always considered advertising liberally and long to be the great medium of success in business and the prelude to wealth. And I have made it an invariable rule to advertise in dull times as well as the long experience having taught me that money spent is well laid out, as by continually keeping my business before the public it has secured many sales that otherwise would have lost."
ADVERTISE YOUR BUSINESS
KEEP YOUR NAME BEFORE THE PUBLIC.
JUDICIOUS ADVERTISING INSURES A FORTUNE.
IF BUSINESS IS DULL, ADVERTISE.
IF BUSINESS IS BRISK, ADVERTISE.
The man who didn't believe in advertising his copartnership with the sheriff, and that ended advertising. jy1dtf

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—In Hall's trial to-day, Garvey's testimony was continued. He could not find the note from the Mayor acknowledging the present of silver pieces, and speaking of the bad figure, "Fox and the Grapes," as witness recollected, the Mayor said he looked less at the Fox and more at the Grapes. On cross examination he said he could not remember of ever telling the Mayor his accounts were correct or unjust. Did not refer to the Mayor in using the words "rest of them." In the former examination, witness said he left the city September 21st in his own name. Did not then know he was under indictment; had heard of civil suits. The Mayor never had any discussion or investigation as to his accounts.

Masterson Mason testified to the actual cost of Garvey's plastering. The Judge excluded the testimony, saying, the enlargement of Garvey's bills was conceded.

A Lawyer testified to bringing suit for Garvey's bills. In July 1871 in an interview with the Mayor the latter said he could do nothing for Garvey. Let the suit go on. Garvey did not want the failure of the Mayor to help him interfere with their relations in the suits now pending.

Ex-Deputy Controller Stowes testifies to the Mayor's signing all warrants for the Court House work. The prosecution put a question as to the Mayor's knowing the bills were excessive: excluded, Judge holding that after the accounts were passed by another board, the Mayor had only to sign the warrants. Teller of Broadway bank called and testified to deposits by Tweed, but after some discussion the prosecution said the testimony was [not?] very important. Judge Brady said unless the testimony implicated Hall, he would exclude it. Counsel then proposed to show that Tweed and Connolly neglected to audit, but this was excluded. This closed the case on the part of the prosecution.

Hall's counsel then asked if after such a showing it was proposed to prosecute the case. Prosecution replied yes on certain of the counts.

The Board, however, took the responsibility of declaring that the proposition is withdrawn, and therefore not to be voted on by the people. The opinion prevails, however, that if the people wish to prevent the subsidy, they must vote against it. Only the members were present, and all voted to withdraw. Forbes and Story were absent.

The latest official report about the future construction of the railroad on the Pacific division is that the directors have taken under advisement a number of bids and propositions to build the line east of the Cascades, from the mouth of the Palouse to Lake Pend d'Oreille, 225 miles; and forty miles on the Sound for 1873, which the Board will likely decide soon after reaching New York, upon receiving a report from the chief engineer, who is now examining the surveys of this division.

The eye-sight of DeLacy was so impaired that it was thought, at one time, that he would lose the sight entirely of one of his eyes. A vegetable diet, to which the party at last accounts had access, would, it was thought, cure their complaint, and restore the party to their former health and strength."

The Seattle Dispatch says: "We are reliably informed that the contract for building 40 miles more of the railroad from Hodgden's north, will be let immediately, which will bring the line some six miles this side of the late excitable terminus point, Tacoma, and some eight miles away from that point, thus virtually settling the point that Seattle, from her natural location, will be the first town on Puget Sound through which the North Pacific Railroad will pass, leaving our highly speculative friends with large blocks of ex terminus property on hand, which will sound large in the hands of their executors or make good assets for a receiver in bankruptcy.

The robbery of the stage near Pleasant Valley Station, Idaho, was mentioned some days ago. The Corinne Reporter gives the following particulars: "Terence C. Brady, of Brooklyn, New York, says when about two miles west of Pleasant Valley Station, two men suddenly came out of the willows by the roadside, one carrying a double-barreled shotgun, and the other two heavy revolvers. They ordered the driver to halt, and inquired how many passengers there were aboard. He had then taken position behind the coach, and the other in front, and ordered all hands out of the coach immediately or he would shoot. All were then ordered into line, the treasure box was thrown out, and while one searched for money and valuables, the other kept a shotgun leveled on the victims. Their pockets were all thoroughly searched, and all money and valuables appropriated. Many remarks were made on both sides, but no violence was used on any one. The following are the names of passengers, their place of residence and their respective losses: A. Logan, Secretary of the United States Geological Surveying party, $4,000; A. Bark, United States Geological party, $150; Terence Brady, Brooklyn, N. Y., $2,400; W. T. Nolan, Readersburg, Mont., $300; J. Birmingham, Helena, Mont., $285; J. Feldberg, do., $150; H. Bedford, England, $10. The passengers had no arms. Some of them lost all their private papers. Mr. Feldberg commenced taking out his watch slyly, when he was ordered to "take his hand out of there," and asked, "what the devil he was doing," and that he would get shot. Feldberg said he was looking for a bottle of whisky to treat with, and finally succeeded in dropping his watch in the bottom of the coach, but they soon made the driver furnish a candle to search the coach. They acted very kindly generally, and first asked if there were any ladies in the coach. On being informed there was one, said she might go unmolested. Mr. Nolan told them he had a sick mother in Chicago, and they gave him back his ticket and $10 in money. The money they took was all gold coin."

The Drama.

It has come to be that there is much to condemn in the modern drama. One goes to the theater not to witness the performance of a story of common life, but with the expectation of seeing something highly exaggerated and overdrawn, sensational and flashy, the more the greater the attraction. It no longer seems to suffice to listen to a plain story of every-day life, filled with the problems which nature is forever seeking to unfold, in the workings of conscience, the history of lives that have no storms save those of toil and self-sacrifice. In the Greek drama there was nothing of the make-up—nothing but the story. A garden with vines and fruit; a background of mountains, with villages, and perhaps a glimpse of the sea; overhead, the sky. The dramatis personæ were clad in the simplest garments, and the story which they delineated to their hearers discussed the subtlest questions of human philosophy. One does not expect, nor desire, perhaps, a return to such classic models in this age; but a little of this primitive simplicity; laying aside of useless accessories and highly-wrought seductive surroundings, would be exceedingly refreshing.

There is something better in the drama than a pandering to vitiated taste: at least one hopes that it has not passed that time when its usefulness as an educator of public morals and public honesty can be relied on. The dramatist who gives us the events of common life, sparkling with scholarly wit, genial humor, and healthful morals, is a benefactor, and the influence he wields is not surpassed by any other teacher. But his work should also be rendered by honest, conscientious, and truth-loving actors; by men and women who take pride in the delineation of these humble, but all-powerful small events, which go to make up the sum of our happiness or misery. The accessories of gorgeous scenery and brilliant costume should, instead of being the first, as is generally the case, be a secondary matter. The events of the humblest life, unsurrounded with any of these accessories, will be nobler and more touching, delineated with the earnestness of men devoted to the best in their art. One does not appeal to the sympathies and better nature of his fellow men, nor fail to win their applause, when he presents the subjects that affect them most nearly in a manner clear, honest and truthful. The greatest effects upon an audience are achieved often by the least apparent effort, and it is because of the inherent force of the actor, not less than the subject he is delineating. There needs be more and higher culture if the drama would occupy the place it should; less sensational and flashy performances; less seeking to attract by adopting questionable styles of play, and costume.

The "variety" style of theater has done more, perhaps, to degrade the public taste than any other of the unnatural and unduly seasoned methods of public entertainment. There is nothing in it that lifts it above condemnation. In most cases the variety theater is a first-class drinking establishment, and crowded at night to witness performances which can have only the effect of lowering public morals, and corrupting the sentiment of the community. There is nothing to relieve it from the worst features of its moral effects. It is simply a perversion of the true idea of amusement. When we shall be rid of this unhealthful parasite depends upon the public themselves. We should not be satisfied until there is a return to the truer and better idea of the drama as a public teacher. The art of the actor should be esteemed in proportion as it is just, natural, and truthful, and the play in proportion as it tells us something noble and good.—Washington Chronicle.

Preparations for War.

In few aspects of the situation is the good fortunes of the American people more apparent than in their exemption from military duty and the burdens of prospective wars. This they may owe more to their situation at so safe a distance from envious and plotting neighbors, than to the form of their Government or to the wisdom of either rulers or people. But to whatever due, it is a blessing which there is no danger of exaggerating, and for which we shall never cherish too lively a gratitude. Make it obligatory on every man, as he comes of age, to give three full years to the military service of the State, and how different the situation of the country! Give us back half the annual conscription of the late war, and make such a yearly levy perpetual, and how should we feel the burden! And yet, in the number of men withdrawn from productive and peaceful pursuits, and in the expense of their maintenance, if not in the havoc of life and direct destruction of property, this would only correspond to the state of things existing, as a rule, in some of the countries of the Old World.

A leading paper of Berlin makes the recent meeting in that city of the Emperors of Germany, Austria, and Russia, the occasion of statements in regard to their individual and combined military forces. It says the effective forces of the Russian army, without including garrison troops or the Cossacks of the Asiatic provinces, to be 1,362,465 men, with 324,760 horses, and 2,084 guns. It places the Austrian army at 963,051 men, with 132,223 horses, and 1,424 guns; and the effective forces of the German Empire at 1,052,506 men, with 239,314 horses, and 2,022 guns. The three together compose a force of 3,378,-021 men, 696,397 horses and 5,530 guns. This is taking the armies on the old war footing, but Germany could exceed the whole number stated as her effective force by some 200,000 men. The others, perhaps, might also enlarge theirs in a like ratio. The point made by this German authority is, that the united forces of the three would considerably exceed those of all the rest of Europe combined; and the inference is, that together they would be invincible in any policy they might adopt. The forces of all the rest of Europe it puts at less than two and a quarter million men, three hundred and twenty-one thousand horses, and thirty-six hundred guns. The forces of France on a war footing are reckoned at 505,537 men, with 113,336 horses, and 984 guns; while those of England are placed at 480,779, with 33,642 horses, and 336 guns. But it is retorted by an authority on the other side, that, according to the new military organization in France, her forces will amount, not to the old number reckoned, but 1,310,000 men, and 2,400 guns, "without counting the second line of reserves and the territorial army, which in case of necessity might raise the effective strength of the French forces to 3,000,000 men."

And so it seems that, talk as much as the rulers may of peace, they dare not trust its continuance, but go on augmenting on the most gigantic scale, their preparations for wars, which are the more sure to come on account of these very preparations. It may all be necessary in their situation, as it exists. Rulers and Cabinets think so. But what a waste! Somebody must be responsible for it. Will there never come an end of such stupendous folly.—Mercantile Journal.

More Freight Quotations.

We should feel like apologizing to our readers for returning to the subject suggested by the caption of this article, were it not a subject that is intimately connected with the commerce of the State and with the financial affairs of every citizen. The farmers especially are vitally interested in any question which so greatly affects the price of their commodities. The return for his produce is to the farmer all the wages he receives for his labor and the interest he obtains upon the capital invested in his farm and its improvements and implements. This return ought to be—and will be when our channels of commerce are all opened to the world—just that sum which is left after paying a reasonable compensation to the carrier who takes the produce to its market. It is the middle men—the carriers and other handlers of produce between the producer and the consumer—that receive the difference between what the producer receives and what the consumer pays. These middle men are necessary to both the producer and consumer, and a fair compensation for their enterprise and for the capital they have in the carrying business, should be allowed them without complaint. What is a fair compensation, is to be determined by a consideration of all the circumstances that enter into and affect the actual necessary expenses of transportation. A region so situated that it cannot avail itself of the advantages of water transportation, must be content to pay higher prices in proportion to distance, consequent upon the great cost of building railways. But in districts more advantageously situated, any charge in excess of what would be reasonable for water transportation, is simply an extortion, no matter upon what pretext it is made. The cost of building and operating a railway forms no part of the legitimate inquiry as to the reasonableness of freight charges, if the same freight could be carried by river for less than the lowest railway charges. The railway company may expend vastly more money than is necessary in the construction of its road; or the necessary cost and the state of the trade may be such that the enterprise can under no circumstances be made a paying investment; but these are matters with which the farmers have nothing to do. They are entitled to the natural advantages of their situation. They should not be required to pay, in the way of excessive freight charges, for the indiscretion or mismanagement of the railway companies.

We have no disposition to cast blame upon the railway companies for getting control of the river transportation, and putting up the freights to such a figure as will enable them to save themselves on the railway investment. As the world goes, this, we suppose, is a legitimate business transaction. But this does not change the fact that the people have to pay for it. The railway managers are saved, but it is at the expense of the producers. What benefit is a railway to a people who are thereby forced to pay more for carrying their produce to the shipping port than they had to pay when they had no railway? When the river transportation is, no matter by what means, forced to a higher point than the necessary cost of freights on the river would be, independently of outside enterprises, there is cause for complaint among the farmers, and the time for competition has arrived. That such a state of affairs as this does exist to-day on the Wallamet river is proved by the undeniable fact that the already high charges on wheat from Albany put on board ship at Portland, were run up $1,35 higher after the river carrying passed into the hands of the railway managers.

We have before shown by quotations from the commercial reports of the most reliable Eastern journals, the enormous difference between freights here and on that side of the continent. We here present some further quotations, by which our readers will see that our statements were not exaggerated:

[From the New York Times Oct. 15.]

BUFFALO, Oct. 16.—Canal freights—Wheat, 14c; Corn, 12½c; Oats, 8c. Flour steady; sales of Western Spring at $7@7 50; Bakers' 7 50@8; Amber, $8 50@8 75; White $9@9 50. Wheat quiet; sales of No. 2 Milwaukee, in small lots, at $1 47. Corn quiet; sales of 16,000 bushels, at 53c; 8,000 bushels at 52½c. Barley in good demand at 92c@95c; for Canada, 90c. for No. 2 Western, and 88c. for State.

CHICAGO, Oct. 16.—Lake freights—Corn to Buffalo, 16½c; Wheat to Buffalo, 16½c.

TOLEDO, Oct. 16.—Freights declining; to Buffalo, 7½@8c; to Oswego, 16½@17c.

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 16.—Lake freights—Wheat, to Buffalo 16c; to Oswego 23c.

[From the New York Herald of Oct. 16.]

OSWEGO, N. Y., Oct. 15.—Wheat quiet; sales of 1,000 bushels No. 2 white State at $1 82, two cars No. 1 Milwaukee Club at $1 56. Canal freight—Wheat, 10c. to New York; carriers ask 8½c. on barley to do. Railroad freights—Flour, to Boston, 60c; to New York, 50c.

The same paper has the following New York quotations of wheat on the 15th:

Wheat was in moderate request, but prime Spring brought full prices. The sales were about 120,000 bushels at $1 35@$1 45½ for inferior and rejected Spring; $1 55@$1 57 for Northwest, $1 58 for No. 2 Milwaukee, $1 64 for No. 1, $1 59@$165 for red Winter, and $1 82@$2 05 for common to choice white.

The Tribune contains the same quotations as those cited above from the Times.

Now let our farmers and merchants compare the above freights on wheat, which is our principal article of export, with what they pay. Take as our standard the charges on wheat from Eugene, which is the main shipping depot of the upper part of the Wallamet valley. From Chicago to Buffalo, by Lake, over 1,000 miles, 16½ cents; from Eugene to Portland, 126 miles, 22½ cents. Or thus: From Chicago to Buffalo, 16½ cents; thence to New York, 14 cents; total, 30½ cents, for a distance by lake, canal and river, of over 1,400 miles, to be set over against our 22½ cents for 120 miles.

Again: Compare railway freights on an Eastern short line, with railway freights on an Oregon short line:

Flour by rail, from Oswego to New York, 331 miles, 50 cents per barrel, corresponding to about 13 cents per bushel on wheat. Wheat, by rail, from Albany, Oregon, to Portland, 75 miles, 14 cents per bushel. That is: It costs in Oregon, to carry wheat 75 miles, one cent more on the bushel than it costs in New York to carry it by rail 331 miles. Freights upon our river are over seven times as high as on the lakes and canal, in proportion to the distance; and upon our railway are over four times as high as on a short line of road in the East.

It is true our farmers ship their wheat, and thus in a manner compete with the farmers of the Northwestern States, but it is true also that they labor under the disadvantage of competing in a market which pays to their competitors more by from 90 cents to $1 20 per bushel net, than our farmers realize.

Leading quartz operators at Pioche are interesting themselves largely in the Wallapi mines, south of the Colorado river. They will erect large reduction works there this Fall and Winter.

The Greeley papers, forced to cease making the direct charge of corruption against prominent Republicans in regard to the Credit Mobilier, still continue to make the accusation by insinuations and innuendoes. They made the charges upon the evidence of a letter supposed to have been written by Hon. Oakes Ames, who was said to have been personally cognizant of all the facts in the premises. Ames, as soon as the matter was brought to his attention, published a denial of any knowledge of such transactions as those alleged against these Republicans, and also denying that he had written the letter imputed to him, or any letter in any way implicating the persons accused, in the Credit Mobilier business. The whole story was a fiction, and the letter was a forgery. If the Greeley papers supposed it to be genuine, however, they were justifiable in its publication, if the manner in which the campaign of the Greeleyites is conducted, is itself defensible. But when the fact of the forgery and imposition became known, it was due to the men whose reputations were involved, that the papers that published the slander should make the amende honorable by retracting—which at best is but an incomplete reparation for an injury that can never be fully undone. If a public journalist has been misled into the publication of that which may do incalculable injury to any person, it certainly is as little as he can do, to give equal publicity to the truth when it is brought home to his knowledge; and there cannot be a political emergency that would justify his refusing to do so.

The Fusionists of Pennsylvania certainly possess the faculty of viewing things in a cheerful light when there appears to others to be little cause of cheerfulness. Samuel J. Randall, Chairman of the Democratic Committee of that State, and A. K. McClure Chairman of the "Liberal Republican" Committee, have issued jointly an address to the Greeleyites, couched in the most grandiloquent terms, urging upon the people of Pennsylvania the great importance of the election of Greeley, not for the sake of having Greeley for President but in order to beat Grant. The address declares that "the battle of reform must be won," by which we suppose is meant that the Democrats and Liberals must have the offices. At the close of the document these gentlemen say "We can deserve victory in Pennsylvania, and that may save the nation." If they have no chance for anything more than to deserve victory, we apprehend they will find it a very difficult task to hold their party to the work. There are comparatively few persons actively engaged in politics who are apt to labor very enthusiastically, simply because there is an opportunity to deserve success, with no chance to achieve it. However, we quite agree with these gentlemen that the country will be safe when they and their associates thoroughly make up their minds to "deserve success." That they have not done so, has been one of the principal sources of trouble in the country for a number of years. The reform they talk so pathetically about will have been effected when they "deserve victory."

We are informed that Governor Grover has vetoed the act creating a State Board of Immigration. This intelligence was received yesterday by a private dispatch from Salem. The Governor's action is certainly a little surprising. Not only was the measure one wholly free from all partisan character, and greatly for the benefit of our young State, but it was understood to be a measure which the Governor especially favored. We quote from his message to the Legislature, sent in on the 13th of September, the following recommendation of this measure:

It is customary in the younger States to offer public inducements for the immigration of new settlers within their borders. Much interest is felt by many of our citizens upon this subject, and many inquiries are made relative to it by those in other American States and in foreign countries, who are contemplating removal to Oregon. This subject is worthy of your careful consideration.

In accordance with this recommendation the Legislature passed a bill, which met with very general approbation; and now his Excellency cuts it off with his veto power.

And now it turns out that the small grain of consolation in their general overthrow, derived by the Democracy from the reported success of their candidate for delegate in Dakota, is withered in their grasp. The St. Paul Press of the 18th inst. says that the reported Democratic victory in Dakota turns out like all the rest of the Democratic victories. Armstrong, the Democratic candidate for delegate to Congress, was not elected. On the contrary, quite the reverse. Judge Brookings, regular Republican candidate, was elected over Armstrong, Democrat, and Moody, bolting Republican. Armstrong is the present delegate.

The Missouri Democrat has gone into an astronomical calculation and says there will be three eclipses in November this year, as follows: A very small eclipse on the night of the 14th, visible; an annual eclipse of the sun on the 20th, invisible in North America; and the total and permanent eclipse of the Democratic party on the 5th, visible to all men.

The Legislature passed Senate Joint Memorial No. 1, asking for the right to be granted to Lane county to bridge the Wallamet at Springfield and at Eugene.

Trifling with the Law.

The San Francisco Chronicle says another case of a jury setting aside the law, occurred the other day on the trial of Wilkerson for killing Mrs. Burkhart in that city last spring:

The jurymen whose duty it was to determine, after duly considering the facts of the case, whether Wilkerson killed Mrs. Burkhart, brought in a verdict of guilty of murder in the second degree. The verdict is indefensible. The only issue in the case was whether deceased was killed or committed suicide. No effort was made to prove any mitigating circumstances, to show that Wilkerson was insane, or to claim that some one else might have done the murder. The defense relied solely upon the theory of suicide; and if the jury believed that theory to be unwarranted by the facts proven, and that Wilkerson killed the woman, it was their plain duty, under their oaths, to return against him a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree. They had only to pass upon the fact of the killing; they had nothing to do with the punishment of the crime; that is provided for by the law. The verdict they did return is clearly unwarranted. The prisoner either is innocent or is guilty of murder in the first degree.

It is difficult to understand how twelve men can determine to disregard their oaths, set aside the law of the land, and undertake to make a compromise between their duty and their sentimentality. Yet we find juries doing so, time and again; and much as we may be inclined to condemn and despise their course, we are yet constrained to the belief that in order to secure something like adequate punishment of murderers, it may be well to amend the law so as to allow juries, in all murder cases, to determine whether capital punishment or imprisonment for life shall be the penalty. It is plain that a mawkish sentimentality is spreading, and created a dislike to send a criminal to the scaffold. Something must be done to improve the law governing murder trials; and if we cannot secure firm and intelligent jurors, who will do their whole duty, let us prevent the law from being persistently disregarded, by giving juries the right to determine the quality of the punishment to be inflicted.

There can be no question that this Wilkerson jury have failed in the performance of their duty. Upon no hypothesis can their verdict be justified. It is plain that they understood this themselves, as they determined not to divulge anything that transpired in the jury-room. There can be no other feeling for the verdict than one of general contempt.

Photography in Astronomy.

M. Faye, a few days ago, called the attention of the French Academy of Sciences to the part which photography was likely to play on the occasion of the transit of Venus, which is expected to take place in December, 1874. He said that England was getting eight helio-photographic apparatuses ready on the model of that at Kew, three of which were ordered by Russia, which has one already. The Germans will have four; Portugal will send the Lisbon one to Macao; the United States are also having some made, but on quite a different plan; and lastly, France intends getting one constructed according to the instructions of the late M. Delaunay. There will therefore be upward of twenty on duty under the management of quite as many first rate hands in photography, at the various places in both hemispheres where the phenomenon will be best visible, for the measure of the sun's parallax. M. Faye added that in this vast photographic undertaking two methods were to be distinguished; in the first, an object glass, having a short focal distance, was taken, giving a very small image, which would have to be enlarged by a special optical apparatus, in order afterward to project it on the sensitive plate; in the second, a long focal distance was adopted whereby the image might be obtained at once of a proper size. The former plan had the advantage of requiring only very light and manageable telescopes, but there was also the drawback of the risk of getting an incorrect image during the process of enlargement. This danger is avoided in the latter method; but there remains the inconvenience of transporting and setting up telescopes measuring between thirty and thirty-six feet in length, which is certainly not encouraging. The Americans, it seems, have nevertheless selected this system. M. Faye is also in favor of it, having had the experience of the lunar eclipse of 1858, which was reproduced by photography with admirable exactness at the first trial.

COMING.—Judge McFadden, the gentleman who is willing to represent Washington Territory in our national Congress, will arrive in this city to-morrow, at about 2 P. M. Thus far the Judge has met with a very cool reception during his tour, and we do hope his supporters will turn out in force and relieve the monotony of the canvass by giving him something like a respectable turnout. Burn a little powder, boys, for it will be the last time you will have a chance to make the old Judge's heart glad, for four years at least. Republicans cannot give him aid or comfort just now; but after the election they will give him what he needs more, and is better for his health—will give him a rest and a certificate to stay at home. Enjoy a good time now, McFaddenites, for the time is short between now and election, and Liberal-Republican-Democratic jollifications will not be popular after November fifth.—Puget Sound Courier.

Meeting at the Court House.—A meeting was announced to take place last evening at the Court House by the County Central Committee. Mr. James O'Meara was announced to address the meeting. The services of the East Portland band were employed for the occasion. After discoursing several lively airs, the band marched to the Court House. On the way thither, a number of sky rockets were fired off. The attendance, though not large, was very fair considering the short notice given of the meeting, the inclemency of the weather, and the fact of its being the opening night of the active campaign. After an introductory piece by the band, Mr. D. J. Malarky, President of the County Central Committee, came forward and introduced the speaker of the evening, James O'Meara, Esq. Mr. O'Meara spoke for over an hour. He made a very pleasant speech, delivered in his usual fluent and discursive style. On his first appearance, and frequently during the course of his remarks, he was interrupted with applause. At the close, the meeting stood adjourned until this evening.

Campaign Opened.—One week from this day the great Presidential election will take place. The County Central Committee have announced that the campaign is now fairly open, and will be prosecuted with vigor and determination for the coming week, which shall end with the election next Tuesday. The ball was set in active motion last evening, and public meetings will be held each succeeding night until next Monday. The place of rendezvous has been designated as the Court House. Each evening competent, able, and eloquent speakers will address the meetings. Good music has been provided to lend zest and enthusiasm to the occasions. Let all differences merge into one common interest, and let there be a grand, concerted effort against the enemy, until his defeat and overthrow shall have been accomplished on the 5th of November. The meeting this evening will be addressed by Hon. John F. Caples. Other speakers will be announced as occasion may require.

Locomotive J. B. Stephens.—The locomotive James B. Stephens was brought down to the east side wharf yesterday, ready to be transferred to this side. A large scow was procured and placed at the end of the pontoon on the other side, just where the ferry lands. A temporary track was laid, reaching to the edge of the pontoon. On this the locomotive will be run, and placed on board the barge, which will convey her to the West side, some distance below the bone yard. A temporary track will be laid, reaching from the place of debarkation to the main track. The J. B. Stephens will be used on the Oregon Central Railroad to draw passenger trains.

An Old Heirloom.—We were shown yesterday a massive meerschaum pipe, which in its way is a regular heirloom. This pipe is over eighty years of age, and has passed in successive order through several German families—handed down from father to son. Notwithstanding it has been used constantly for so many years, its smoke is as fragrant and sweet as when the pipe was new. The silver mountings around the bowl and stem have been worn out several times by constant use, and have been replaced. The pipe was a present to the owner, who would not part with it for a large sum.

Mud Scows.—One of the two scows to be constructed under the superintendency of Major Robert, which will be used in connection with the new dredger, now in process of construction, is nearly finished. It is being built just above the upper sawmill. The dimensions are 70x20 feet and about 10 feet depth of hold. The scow is so constructed that the load is discharged through the bottom by means of a sort of trap door. The first one will be completed by next Saturday and work will begin at once on the other scow.

Adjudged Insane.—A man named William Moffatt, living at Cornelius, was taken before Hon. T. D. Humphreys, County Judge of Washington county, on Monday of this week, to be examined as to his sanity. A diagnosis of his case was made by Dr. Vite, of Hillsboro, and he was adjudged insane, and the Sheriff ordered to place him in the Insane Asylum at East Portland. He was brought in on the cars last night and delivered into the charge of Dr. Hawthorne. We did not learn the nature of his insanity.

Completed.—The Deputy County Clerk, Jas. A. Waters, completed the making out of the tax roll yesterday. The amount of taxable property in the county is $8,796,600, and the amount of tax to be raised is $114,381 80. This is divided as follows: For school purposes, $17,597 20, for State purposes, $48,392 30, for county purposes, $48,392 30; total, $114,381 80.

City Directory.—Get ready to give your names, occupation and places of residence. Several persons are now engaged in canvassing the city for McCormick's Directory. As soon as the necessary materials are collected, the work of compilation of this valuable book of reference will be commenced, in time to be issued by the first of January.

Sudden Death.—A dam n onle, residing on Mill, between Second and Third streets, died yesterday after a few hours illness. She arose in the morning in good health, but soon afterward complained of feeling sick. A physician was summoned, but the woman died about one o'clock. An inquest will be held over the body.

Rendezvous.—Numbers of Chinamen are arriving every day from various points. They have been engaged as graders on the several railroads in process of construction, and as winter is approaching apace, have flocked hither to make Portland a rendezvous until the spring opens and work is resumed "along the line."

Mammoth Tomato.—Mr. Chas. Cullen laid on our table last evening, a very large tomato, grown in the garden of Hon. H. W. Corbett, in this city. It is the largest specimen of this vegetable fruit we have ever yet seen, weighing just two pounds. The skin was smooth and unbroken, and the flesh fresh and palatable.

Views Illustrated.—All the prominent buildings, views, also, all of Oregon's fine scenery will appear in Samuel's Directory of Portland, the only reliable edition ever published here. The price of advertising twenty five per cent. less than others are charging for an inferior publication.

Republican Speaking.—We are informed by a telegram from Eugene City that C. A. Ball, Esq., of this city, is to address the Grant and Wilson Club at Eugene City, on the evening of Saturday, November 2d.

U. S. District Court.—The U. S. District Court will convene this morning.

Clear Through.—Construction trains have been running through to Roseburg since the 20th of the month. The work of ballasting the road will be so far advanced as to permit the running of passenger trains by the first of next month, when we can consequently expect a change in the present schedule time.

Sent Up.—Carroll, the man who conducted himself in a very disorderly manner at the Russ House last Saturday evening, was arraigned in the Police Court yesterday morning. The charge entered against him was defacing a building "not his own." He pleaded guilty and was sent to the jail for ten days.

Sidewalks.—Mr. Butts, one of the contractors on Fourth street, informs us that he has graded along that street since the work of improvement was commenced, 7,000 cubic yards of earth, and taken up, graded and placed down to the established grade, over 5,000 feet of sidewalk.

Crank Pin Broke.—One of the crank pins of the steamer Vancouver was broken yesterday morning as that boat was on the way from Vancouver to this place. She succeeded in reaching her wharf by the usual time. The breakage was repaired yesterday in a few hours.

Receiving Cargo.—The bark Forward, although announced to sail on the first of the month for Hongkong, will not be able to get away by that time. She is now receiving cargo at the rate of 70 tons per day. Her cargo will consist of flour, lumber and passengers.

Keel Laid.—The keel for the new dredger, to be built by Mr. T. J. Bulger, under supervision of Major Robert, has been laid just above the lower sawmill. Work is progressing as rapidly as possible. A description of this boat was given some time ago in these columns.

Change of Agents.—A correspondent at Hillsboro writes that a general change of station agents took place on the West Side Railroad on Monday. It seemed as if they had been bagged up and then shaken out, taking position as they happened to fall.

Within a Month.—At the rate at which work is progressing on Fourth street, it will be graded, planked, the gutters, sidewalks and crosswalks laid as far as College street, within a month. That will be as far as the work will progress this season.

Quick Work.—The tax roll has been completed by Mr. Jas. A. Waters, Deputy county clerk, in the short space of eight days. Last year the same labor required sixteen days. The roll will be placed in the hands of the Sheriff for collection.

Prisoners.—There are now confined in the county jail, 16 prisoners, four of whom are United States prisoners. In the city jail there are confined 17 persons serving out various terms of confinement.

Meeting of Incorporators.—A meeting of the incorporators of the Portland, Hillsboro and Centerville Plank Road Company, at the office of the Secretary on the 9th of November.

To Come Up.—The case of the State vs. Chas. Brower, charged with stabbing a young man, will come up for a preliminary examination before Judge Denny this morning.

Continued.—The case of State vs. Thomas Moore, charged with larceny before Judge Denny, was continued until this morning in the Police Court.

AMUSEMENTS.

The second rendition of "Early California" at Oro Fino Theater last evening drew an immense house. Manager Waldron has made a fortunate "hit" by the putting of this sensational play on the boards. It bids fair to have as protracted a run as "Rosedale." The same piece again this evening. No one should fail to witness "Early California."

GENERAL NOTES AND NEWS.

The Oakland News says the O'Conor and Adams meeting held in that city on the 22d instant was larger than any Greeley meeting held there during the campaign.

Two bales of hay were recently brought to San Francisco overland by rail, from Philadelphia. The freight on them was $132, and they were sent out to feed the celebrated trotting mare "Lucy."

The Chicago Times gives Joaquin Miller's "Isles of the Amazon" a scathing critique, pronouncing the poem crude and imperfect, and advising the poet not to attempt to soar till he gets so he can creep.

The following shows the space in square yards occupied by former exhibitions, and to be used at Vienna. London (Hyde Park), 1851, 94,000; Paris, 1855, 223,214; London, 1862, 222,316; Paris, 1867, 527,745; Vienna, 1873, 2,783,809.

In Germany, children go to school at seven o'clock in the morning, and do not leave until four in the afternoon. Half an hour at noon is regarded by the schoolmasters as ample time for eating a bit of black bread and drinking a cup of Adam's celebrated ale.

The Sacramento Union says the Sons of Temperance are making vigorous exertions in behalf of the temperance cause in California, and that it is evident that the temperance movement is taking a deeper hold upon the community than it has ever done before.

The tidal phenomenon on Lake Ontario, which was noticed last June, has again appeared. The greatest change in the depth of water observed is twenty-two inches. The lake is very quiet, and there is nothing visible in the surroundings to create the unusual phenomenon.

One of the largest chains ever manufactured in this country is to be made at the Massachusetts State Prison. It will be made of iron two and a quarter inches in diameter, and there will be three hundred links, each of which will weigh about fifty pounds. It is for use on a marine railway, at East Boston.

Ruskin has travelled all over Venice and Florence to find a quiet spot where he might sit down and enjoy himself, without having the nineteenth century ringing and dinging in his ears and dogging his steps. But in vain. The poor old man has got so much disquiet in himself that it follows him as his shadow wherever he goes.

The "White Star" Line will put on a line of five first-class steamers to run between California and China, consisting of the Republic, Asiatic, Atlantic, Tropic and Bumac. The first named sailed from Liverpool on the 5th inst to Valparaiso, and will then go on the route above mentioned. The Republic and Atlantic have been for some time in the Liverpool and New York service.

The Locke Bill, Water Works Bill, Litigant Bill, Police Bill, and other bills, are attracting general attention throughout the State. You can do no better than buy a bill of goods at J. O'Neil & Co's. Their fall and winter goods are open for inspection. An excellent stock in deed. The prices are moderate. You can depend upon getting clothes to fit at this house. Need anything more be said? No. The place is 93 First street.

Epicureans will find at Stalls Nos 10 and 11, Central Market, a very choice lot of game, fish and poultry. Quinn, who continues to dispense these luxuries at the Union Market, Washington street, presides over these stalls and that is all that need be said to induce every one to call.

Very little time remains for you to decide whether you are going to vote for Grant or Greeley. This however, need not disturb your mind in the least, as you will certainly decide the moment you gaze upon that elegant stock of new fall and winter goods lately opened at Fisher & Roberts, to have them take your measure for a suit. While there examine the latest styles in gents furnishing goods. Youths can be accommodated with neat fitting suits at this house.

The old saying is, "What everybody says must be true," and everyone says that Beck & Waldman have the largest and best selected stock of the latest styles and patterns in gentlemen's Clothing and Furnishing Goods in the city of Portland. They have the largest variety of Boy's, Youth's, and Children's Suits, all which will be sold according to the times. Those call and satisfy yourself that we will not be undersold by anyone.

Criminal Imposition.

A bad bill substituted for a good one is simply a loss to the pocket of the taker, but a poisonous slop substituted for a life sustaining medicine imperils the health of those who imbibe it, and the man who concocts, or sells, or recommends such an article is a criminal impostor, and deserves to be visited with a heavier penalty than if he had counterfeited gold pieces or forged bank bills. Many vile, unwholesome potions now being offered for sale in various parts of the country, as "tonics" and "restoratives," are recommended by their dishonest proprietors and vendors as superior to the famous national specific, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Desperate attempts are made to thrust these pernicious compounds into the hands and down the throats of the long patrons of the great vegetable stimulant and stomachic; and although these conspiracies against health and life very rarely succeed, it nevertheless seems to be a duty occasionally to warn the credulous against them. Hostetter's Bitters, the unequalled remedy for casual indigestion, confirmed dyspepsia, biliousness, liver complaint, malarious fevers, constipation, constitutional weakness and the functional derangement of the weaker sex, has for twenty years stood at the head of all medicines of its class—so far above them as to render competition futile. It has not yet reached the meridian of its popularity, its sale being larger now than at any period since its introduction. Its utility as a preventive of disorders engendered by an insalubrious atmosphere or unwholesome water is admitted by physicians practicing in unhealthy districts, and it is recommended as a stimulant by many practitioners who will not take the responsibility of prescribing the adulterated liquors of commerce.

PLANTATION BITTERS!

S. T.--1860--X.

This wonderful vegetable restorative is the sheet-anchor of the feeble and debilitated. As a tonic and cordial for the aged and languid it has no equal among stomachics. As a remedy for the nervous weakness to which women are especially subject, it is superseding every other stimulant. In all climates, tropical, temperate or frigid, it acts as a specific in every species of disorder which undermines the bodily strength and breaks down the animal spirits.

Beautiful Woman.

HAGAN'S MAGNOLIA BALM gives to the Complexion the Freshness of Youth.

Hagan's Magnolia Balm overcomes the flushed appearance caused by heat, fatigue and excitement. By its use the roughest skin is made to rival the pure radiant texture of youthful beauty. It removes redness, blotches and pimples. It contains nothing that will injure the skin in the least.

Magnolia Balm is used by all fashionable ladies in New York, London and Paris. It costs only 75 cents per Bottle, and is sold by all Druggists and Perfumers.

Mr. Adams' Statement.

We regret that we cannot give a full abstract of the able statement of Mr Adams of the reasons for his decision in the Alabama cases. We single out two passages, however, which will we think be read with interest. The first relates to the question whether the Florida was purged of her contempt of the English laws by her success in getting into Mobile

"It now remains to me only to recur to the question, already proposed in the course of this opinion, regarding any change of original character that may be considered to have taken place in this vessel by the fact of her having succeeded in reaching a port of the belligerent power to which she claimed to belong. I have endeavored to give to this point the most careful and diligent study of which I am capable. The result is that I cannot arrive at any conclusion satisfactory to myself which even implies a necessity to assent to the proposition that success sanctifies fraud. All law recognized by the conscience of civilized nations has for its only solid basis a conviction that it is based upon clear principles of right. In some languages the word used to express these ideas is identical. At the same time I am not unaware that in the progress of international relations there may happen from time to time occasions when a necessity will arise to recognize a simple fact without reference to its nature. But this must happen under circumstances which imply neither participation nor approval. It ought not to be permited to happen when these circumstances are clearly within control, and the motive to act should be imperative as upholding the majesty of law. In the case before us it seems to me conclusively established by evidence that from the moment of inception to that of complete execution, the building, equipping, and despatching of the vessel were equally carried on by a resort to every species of falsehood and fraud in order to baffle and defeat the legitimate purpose of Her Majesty's Government to uphold the sanctity of her laws and make good her obligations to a foreign nation with which she was at peace. Down to the moment of arrival at Mobile I fail to perceive any good reason for supposing that the character the vessel took at the outset had not substantially adhered to it to the end. It has always been to me a cause of profound regret that Her Majesty's government had not seen fit to mark her sense of the indignities heaped upon her by the flagrant violation of her laws in these cases, at least by excluding the vessels from her ports. Thus she would have rescued her own honor and escaped the evil consequences which have ever since attended her opposite decision. Such a course had not been without its advocates among jurists of eminence in the kingdom, at least one of whom had recorded his opinion. A significant example may be found in the papers before us. Such a course could not have failed to maintain itself in the end by the simple force of its innate harmony with justice and with right. To suppose that the moral stain attached to a transaction of this character can be wiped out by the mere incident of visiting one place or another without any material alteration of the constituent body inspiring its action, seems to me to be attaching to an accident the virtue which appertained solely to an exercise of the will. I cannot, therefore, concede to this notion any shade of weight. The vessel called the Florida, in my view, carried the same indelible stamp of dishonor from its cradle to its grave; and in this opinion I have been happy to discover that I am completely sustained by the authority of one of the most eminent of the jurists of my own country who ever sate in the highest seat of our most elevated tribunal. I find it recorded in one of the volumes submitted to our consideration by the agent of Her Majesty's government, from which I pray for leave to introduce the following extracts, as making an appropriate close:

"'If this were to be admitted,' says Chief Justice Marshall, 'the laws for the preservation of our neutrality would be completely eluded. Vessel completely fitted in our ports for military expeditions need only sail to a belligerent port, and there, after obtaining a commission, go through the ceremony of discharging and re-enlisting their crew to become perfectly legitimate cruisers, purified from every taint contracted at the place where all their real force and capacity for annoyance was acquired. This would indeed be fraudulent neutrality, disgraceful to our own government, and of which no nation would be the dupe.'

"For the reasons herein specified I have come to the conclusion in the case now presented of the Florida that Great Britain, by reason of her omission to use due diligence to prevent the fitting out, arming and equipping within its jurisdiction of that vessel, and, further, of her omission to forbid the crew of that vessel from making use of its ports or waters as the base of operations against the United States, has failed to fulfill the duties set forth in each and every one of the three rules prescribed to the arbitrators as their guide under the terms of the treaty of Washington."

The second passage which we quote is Mr. Adams' explanation of what he understands by the words "due diligence:"—

"These words, which are found in the first and third of the rules prescribed by the treaty of Washington for the government of the arbitrators in making up their judgment, have given rise to much discussion in the preparatory arguments of the opposing parties. On the side of Great Britain an explanation of them is given in the 9th, 10th and 11th propositions, laid down on the 24th and 25th pages of the case. The subject is again considered in pages 21 and 22 of the volume called the Counter-Case. It is again referred to in the 8th and 9th pages of the volume called the Argument or Summary. Lastly, it is treated in a more general way in the argument presented by Sir Roundell Palmer, counsel on behalf of Her Britannic Majesty, on the 25th of July last. On the side of the United States, an explanation is presented in pages 150 to 158 of the volume called the Case. It is again referred to in the sixth page of the Counter-Case. The subject is again treated in pages 310 to 322 of the argument or summary. Lastly, it is discussed in a more general way in the argument submitted by the counsel on behalf of the United States on the 5th and 6th of August. The objection which I am constrained to admit as existing in my mind to the British discussion is that it appears to address itself for the most part to the establishment of limitations to the meaning of the words rather than to the explanation of the obligations which they imply. The objection which I am constrained to find to the American definition is that I do not find the word 'due' used in the sense attributed to it in any dictionary of established authority. Yet it does not appear to me so difficult to find a suitable meaning for these words. Perhaps it may have been overlooked from the very fact of its simplicity. I understand the word diligence to signify not merely work, but to use a familiar phrase, work with a will. The force of the qualifying epithet 'due' can be best obtained by tracing it to its origin. All lexicographers derive it from the Latin verb 'debere,' which itself is a compound of two words 'de' and habere,' which means quasi de alio habere,' that is in English, to have of or from another. Assuming this to be the primary meaning, I now come to the second step. The first having implied something received by one person from another, the second implies equally an obligation incurred thereby. 'Debere,' in Latin, means to owe. In French it becomes 'devoir,' which is equivalent to debt, to duty, or to obligation In English it is thus defined by two eminent authorities Richardson—'That which is owed; which any one ought to have, has a right to demand, claim, or possess.' Webster—'Owed, that ought to be paid or done to another. That is due from me to another, which contract, justice, or propriety requires me to pay, and which he may justly claim as his right.' I have searched a great variety of other authorities, but do not cite them, as they only repeat the same idea Hence it may be inferred that the sense of the words 'due diligence' is that of 'earnest labor owed to some other party,' which that party may claim as its right. But, if this definition be conceded, it must naturally follow that the nature and extent of this obligation cannot be measured exclusively by the judgment or pleasure of the party subject to it. If it could, in the ordinary transactions between individuals, there would be little security for the faithful performance or obligations if it were not that the party to whom the obligation has been given retains a right to claim it in the sense that he understands it, his prospect of obtaining justice in a contested case would be but slight. If this view of the meaning of the words be the correct one, it follows that when a neutral government is bound, as in the first and third rule laid down in the treaty for our guidance, to use 'due diligence in regard to certain things, it incurs an obligation to some external party, the nature and extent of which it is not competent to it to measure exclusively by its own will and pleasure. Yet the assumption that it is competent appears to me to underlie the whole extent of the British position in this controversy. It may, indeed, be affirmed that no sovereign power in the last resort is accountable to any other for the results of the exercise of its own judgment arrived at in good faith This proposition may be admitted to be true in point of fact, but it is obvious that proceedings under it again no sanction under any law but that of superiority in physical force To escape this alternative resort has been had to an attempt at definition of a system of rights and obligations, to which the assent of civilized nations imparts authority in the regulation of their reciprocal duties. Under that system all the nations recognizing it are placed on a perfectly equal footing, no matter what the nature of their relative force To borrow a sentence from the British counter-case

"'Her Majesty's government knows of no distinction between more dignified and less dignified powers, it regards all sovereign States as enjoying equal rights and equally subject to all ordinary international obligations; and it is firmly persuaded that there is no State in Europe or America which would be willing to claim or accept any immunity in this respect on the ground of its inferiority to others in extent, military force or population.'

"Admitting this position in its fullest extent, it may at the same time be affirmed that, if Her Majesty's government were to enter into a contract with these various States as a neutral power, to use due diligence in certain emergencies, not one even of the smallest of them would fail to deny that Her Majesty's government was the exclusive judge of the measure of its obligations contracted under those words. What is, then, the rule by which the actual performance of this duty can be estimated? It seems to me tolerably plain. Whatever may be the relative position of nations, the obligation between them rests upon the basis of exact and complete reciprocity. Hence the compact embraced in the words 'due diligence' must be fulfilled according to the construction placed upon the terms by each separate nation, subject to reasonable modifications by the just representations of any other nation with which it is in amity, suffering injury from the consequences of a mistake of negligence or intention. These may very naturally grow out of the great difference in their relative position, which should properly be taken into consideration. In the struggle which took place in America 'due diligence' in regard to the commercial interests of one of the belligerents meant a very different thing from the same words applied to the other. The only safe standard is that which may be reached by considering what a nation would consider its right to demand of another were their relative positions precisely reversed. If the due diligence actually exercised by one nation towards another does not prove to be exactly that diligence which would be satisfactory if applied to itself under parallel circumstances, then the obligation implied by the words has not been properly fulfilled, and reparation to the party injured is no more than an act of common justice. Such seems to be the precise character of the present controversy. Her Majesty's government denies that the measure of diligence due by her as a neutral to the United States as a belligerent during the late struggle was so great under the law of nations as it has been, with her consent, made by the terms of the treaty. But, in either case, she claims to be the exclusive judge of her fulfillment of it, apart from the establishment of this tribunal, to which she has consented to appeal. But this very act implies the consciousness of the possibility of some debt contracted in the process by the use of these terms that may justly be claimed by another party. Of the nature and extent of that debt, and how far actually paid, it is the province of this tribunal to determine after full consideration of the evidence submitted. Such is the construction I have placed up the words 'due diligence.'"

FINANCE AND COMMERCE.

MONDAY EVENING, Oct. 28, 1872.

Gold in New York to-day, 113¼.

Portland Legal Tender rates, 88c buying; 89c selling.

Average California Wheat in Liverpool, 12s 6d@12s 9d; Club Wheat, 13s 3d.

The editor of one of our most reliable Eastern exchanges, dated the 10th inst., says he has been trying to figure out the condition of the Money market, but gives it up He thought he had it all right, as far as New York was concerned. The banks had been short on their legal reserve about $1,500,000. The banks are required by law to have in cash—legal tender currency, 3 per cent. certificates and coin—25 per cent. of their legal liabilities. Well, they did not quite have it. The New York banks are obliged to have 25 per cent. of their liabilities on hand in lawful money Other banks may have half of this amount on deposit in New York. The New York statement was very clear, although it showed a tight money market. Mr. Boutwell stepped in and sold $5,000,000 of gold for about $5,650,000, and delivered the gold and left the money mostly on deposit in New York. Then he bought $500,000 of bonds, for which he paid about $5,650,000, and that amount passed into the banks; so that there was no mystery in understanding how the bank deposits increased and the specie reserve increased $5,154,400, and that the New York banks now hold $3,575,400 above the 25 per cent. required by law

But when the same writer comes to Chicago, we think he is still more puzzled. The Tribune of the 14th makes a carefully prepared statement of the condition of the Chicago banks, and exhibits "cash means" 33 24 per cent. of their liabilities. The Times has also a carefully prepared statement (both taken from the sworn exhibits of the banks), and shows that the banks have "cash means" 41 per cent of their liabilities. This is confusing. No bank is the same in both statements. Of course they must be made up in different ways from the same figures To one bank the Tribune gives 65 per cent and the Times only 33 per cent of cash means. To another bank the Tribune only gives 31 per cent. and the Times generously yields 40 per cent. of cash means To a small bank which only exhibits in its sworn statement $25,000 cash, of which $15,000 are "legal tender," the Tribune gives 50.50 per cent and the Times 43 per cent of cash means, while to a large bank, which actually holds in cash—legal tender and bank bills—within a small amount of the legal reserve required, without counting their New York reserve, the Tribune gives only 24 per cent and the Times 43 per cent of cash means

The Chicago Journal of Commerce discusses at length the question whether it were better for the country to ever have a currency redeemable in specie, and says this is not a new question, but which, when it is fairly discussed, will be found becoming a more serious question, every day. It may be safely asserted that all business men, bankers and speculators are decidedly opposed to any violent effort being made towards specie payments. Many who begin to discover that the climax of upward prices is nearly reached, would favor an additional issue of greenbacks. Of course such an additional issue would have a direct tendency to postpone the day of resumption. Those who favor a non specie-paying currency assert that it is already proved by experience that the Government stamp on the denominations of currency made legal tender is just as good on a piece of paper as on a piece of metal; that the paper is the most convenient currency and costs but little, while the metal, if used as currency is unwieldy and inconvenient and very expensive, that its intrinsic value as metal is only equal to the cost of its production, that whether in use or on deposit, it represents simply so much labor expended and the product of such labor unprofitably used, that if no other means of furnishing legal tender currency could be established, the use of coin might be tolerated, but with the constitutionality of paper legal tender established by the Supreme Court of the United States, the more economic and convenient currency should be used, entirely ignoring coin as having any other than its purely commercial value This class of men also argue with some reason that on a specie paying currency, the old countries of Europe, which govern their business on a rule of very slow but very sure growth and have no other currency but coin and England, which regulates its commercial business through a government bank which only issues currency to the amount of specie in its vaults, always have the advantage of a young, growing and very progressive country like our own

Our local money market is still close, and our very latest advices by mail would seem to indicate a continuance of the stringency A leading financial writer in Chicago, on the 10th inst., wrote that he believed the tightness so generally prevalent in monetary matters was only temporary, and would end with the present month But on the 12th, the same writer says 'Upon comparing the views of a large number of commercial and financial papers from all parts of the world, and in the light of further developments, we are of the opinion that a close money market for legitimate business will continue during the whole season; and that hereafter merchants must not be seduced into extensive engagements by an apparent plentiful supply of money in dull seasons of the year'

Receipts of general produce to-day, have been very fair and prices remain as at the close of last week. Wheat is coming forward faster than facilities for its shipment can be obtained, and purchasers are not forward in giving what seems to be the low price of $1 35 per cental for sacked The San Francisco and Liverpool markets are weak and the depression has affected us correspondingly

The Wheat and Flour market of California is thus reviewed by a leading exchange

Wheat continues to come forward to tide water as fast as ships can be found to carry it away—the great regret is more are not to be had—not one twentieth of what could be employed and while every ship that is offered is eagerly taken and at the highest rates, the cry is still More Ships Wanted, and although our warehouses are crammed full, our wharves and every available spare space on our wharves are occupied with Grain, and as more at water front, so it is all along the lines of our railroads everywhere, Grain, Grain, Grain, the quantity seems endless—a continuous stream of Wheat pouring onward seeking the shipping point

The Flour market is dull—but little going abroad One thing, however, is greatly to the credit of our State, the Flour of California is now esteemed the best in the World.

Wheat is going forward as fast as we have ships to carry it Over twenty ships are now loading with Wheat; in addition to nearly one hundred already gone previously, the aggregate will be over Three Million Centals, and valued at nearly Five and a Half Million Dollars—exceeding in value and in quantity all four shipments the last three years from July 1, 1869, to July 1, 1872, before one new year begun

The scarcity of tonnage and the high rate of freight has retarded the shipment of Grain this year materially, and many vessels left our port in ballast early in the season that should have been loaded with Grain. We look now for a large fleet of ships that will soon be here to relieve our market and take away its millions still of surplus

NEW REMEDIES, NEW REMEDIES

Dr. Gibbon's Dispensary,

623 KEARNEY STREET, NEAR COMMERCIAL, San Francisco, Established in 1854 for the treatment of Sexual and Seminal Diseases, such as Gonorrhea, Gleet, Stricture, Syphilis in all its forms, Seminal Weakness, Impotency, etc. Skin Diseases (of years standing) and Ulcerated Legs successfully treated.

DR. GIBBON has the pleasure of announcing that he has returned from visiting the principal Hospitals of Europe, and has resumed practice at his Dispensary, 623 Kearny street, corner of Commercial, San Francisco, where his old patients and those requiring his services may find him. The Doctor has spared neither time nor money in seeking out new remedies, and has returned with increased facilities for the alleviation of human suffering

Horrible Diseases.

How many thousands of persons, both male and female, are there who are suffering out a miserable existence from the effects of secret indulgences, or from virus absorbed into the system! Look at their pallid, emaciated and disfigured faces and their broken down constitutions, disqualifying them for the happiness of marriage or the enjoyment of life. In this horrid situation thousands suffer until death closes the scene. Let parents, guardians, friends, attend to those who are suffering with any of these horrible, life-destroying maladies—see that they are cared for and cured before it be too late! Send them immediately to DR. GIBBON, a physician who has made private diseases his special study for years, and who is certain to cure the most inveterate case, without mercury or any injurious drugs It is important to those who are afflicted, or to those who are interested in the welfare of their friends, to be careful of the many pretended doctors who infest all cities, publishing their skill in curing all diseases in a few days, imposing upon the public by using the names of eminent physicians from Europe and other places. Be therefore careful and make strict inquiry, or you may fall into the hands of those charlatans.

Seminal Weakness.

Seminal Emissions, the consequence of self-abuse This solitary vice, or depraved sexual indulgence, is practiced by the youth of both sexes to an almost unlimited extent, producing with unerring certainty, the following train of morbid symptoms, unless combatted by scientific medical measures, viz · Sallow countenance dark spots under the eyes, pain in the head, ringing in the ears, noise like the rustling of leaves and rattling of chariots, uneasiness about the loins, weakness of the limbs, confused vision, blunted intellect, loss of confidence, diffidence in approaching strangers, a dislike to form new acquaintances, disposition to shun society, loss of memory, hectic flushes, pimples and various eruptions about the face, furred tongue, fetid breath, coughs, consumption, night sweats, monomania and frequent insanity. If relief be not obtained, should apply immediately, either in person or by letter, and have a cure effected by his new and scientific mode of treating this disease, which never fails of effecting a quick and radical cure Dr. G. will give One Hundred Dollars to any person who will prove satisfactorily to him that he was cured of the complaint by either of the San Francisco quacks.

MARRIED MEN.

Or those who contemplate marriage, who are suffering under any of these fearful maladies, should not forget the sacred responsibility resting upon them nor delay to obtain immediate relief. DOCTOR GIBBON is responsible, and will give to each patient a written instrument, binding himself to effect a radical and permanent cure, or make no charge.

CURED AT HOME.

Persons at a distance may be CURED AT HOME, by addressing a letter to Dr. Gibbon, stating case, symptoms, length of time the disease has continued, and have medicines promptly forwarded, free from damage and curiosity, to any part of the country, with full and plain directions. By inclosing Ten Dollars coin, in registered letter through the Post office or through Wells, Fargo & Co., a package of medicine will be forwarded to any part of the Union. All communications strictly confidential.

Caution to the Unfortunate.

Beware of the San Francisco quacks and pretenders who, with bogus sworn-to certificates, dupe the unwary Some of the self-styled doctors, whose names are to be found in the daily and weekly newspapers of San Francisco and other places, are tradesmen and became too lazy to work at their trades. Some are tinsmiths, shoemakers, newspaper carriers, intelligence office keepers, etc. The only way to avoid imposition is to make inquiry—it will cost you nothing, and may save you many regrets; for, as advertising physicians in eight cases out of ten are bogus, there is no safety in trusting any of them until you know who and what they are. Dr. Gibbon does not deceive people by exhibiting bogus titles, certificates, pretended patients' letters, etc. Dr. Gibbon will satisfy persons who may call at his offices of his ability to treat diseases that he proposes to cure. Address DR. J. F. GIBBON, 623 Kearney street, corner Commercial, San Francisco, Post Office Box 1,957. REMEMBER TO PUT BOX 1,957 ON THE LETTER. Consultations FREE.

Correspondents will please inform DR. GIBBON that they read his advertisement in the Daily Oregonian. ly6dap

GIRARD'S SECRET.—Stephen Girard said in his old age: "I have always considered advertising liberally and long to be the great medium of success in business, and the prelude to wealth. And I have made it an invariable rule to advertise in dull times as in brisk, long experience having taught me that money thus spent is well laid out, as by continually keeping my business before the public it has secured me many sales I otherwise would have lost."

ADVERTISE YOUR BUSINESS. KEEP YOUR NAME BEFORE THE PUBLIC. JUDICIOUS ADVERTISING INSURES SUCCESS. IF BUSINESS IS DULL, ADVERTISE. IF BUSINESS IS BRISK, ADVERTISE.

The man who didn't believe in advertising has gone into partnership with the sheriff, and the sheriff does the advertising.
